Educational History

Ph.D., 1990, University of Arizona, Tucson, AZ 85721

Arid Lands Resource Sciences

“Late Preceramic Farmer-Foragers in Southeastern Arizona: A Cultural and Ecological Consideration of the Spread of Agriculture into the Arid Southwestern United States”

Dissertation director: Charles F. Hutchinson, Arid Lands Resource Sciences, University of Arizona, Tucson, AZ 85721

M.A., 1976, University of Arizona, Tucson, AZ 85721, Anthropology

B.A., 1972, University of Arizona, Tucson, AZ 85721, Anthropology (with honors)

“The Hardt Creek Site: A Pre-Ceramic Occupation in the Upper Tonto Basin”

Thesis advisor: Arthur J. Jelinek, Department of Anthropology, University of Arizona

Employment History

2014 to present: Associate Professor, Department of Anthropology, University of New Mexico, Albuquerque, NM

2005 to 2007: Interim Director, Maxwell Museum of Anthropology and Research Associate Professor, Department of Anthropology, University of New Mexico, Albuquerque, New Mexico

2000 to 2014: Senior Research Coordinator, Maxwell Museum of Anthropology, and Research Associate Professor, Department of Anthropology, University of New Mexico, Albuquerque, New Mexico

1994 to 1999: Senior Research Coordinator, Maxwell Museum of Anthropology, and Research Assistant Professor, Department of Anthropology, University of New Mexico, Albuquerque, New Mexico.

1992 to 1994: Research archaeologist, Desert Archaeology, Inc., Tucson, Arizona. William H. Doelle, director.

1990 to 1992: Associate faculty member, Pima Community College, Tucson, Arizona.

1978 to 1992: Archaeological specialist/project director, Cultural Resource Management Division, Arizona State Museum, University of Arizona, Tucson.

1978: (March-August) Supervisory archaeologist, Cultural Resource Management Division, Arizona State Museum, University of Arizona, Tucson.

1977-1978: (August-February) Supervisory archaeologist, Oxbow Hill-Payson Project, Highway Salvage Section, Arizona State Museum, University of Arizona, Tucson.

1974-1977: (August-June) Research assistant, Dr. C. Vance Haynes, Jr., Department of Anthropology, University of Arizona, Tucson.

1977: (February-May) Supervisory archaeologist, Slate Creek and Dateland Projects, Highway Salvage Section, Arizona State Museum, University of Arizona, Tucson.

1975-1976: (December-March) Supervisory archaeologist, Ganado Lake Project, Highway Salvage Section, Arizona State Museum, University of Arizona, Tucson.

1975: (May-July) Crew foreman, Lehner Ranch Clovis Project, Dr. C. Vance Haynes, Jr., University of Arizona, Tucson.

1974: (May-July) Crew foreman, Lehner Ranch Clovis Project, Dr. C. Vance Haynes, Jr., University of Arizona/Southern Methodist University.

1972-1974: (July-May) Assistant archaeologist, Highway Salvage Section, Arizona State Museum, University of Arizona, Tucson.

1971: (July-September) Assistant supervisor, Ushklish Project, Highway Salvage Section, Arizona State Museum, University of Arizona, Tucson.

1971: (June-July) Crew member, Murray Springs Clovis Project, Dr. C. Vance Haynes, Jr., Southern Methodist University.

1970: (July-September) Assistant supervisor, Double Adobe Project, Highway Salvage Section, Arizona State Museum, University of Arizona, Tucson.

Professional Recognition and Honors

Heritage Publication Award, 2014, New Mexico Department of Cultural Affairs, Historic Preservation Division for Clovis Caches, Recent Discoveries & New Research (Bruce B. Huckell and J. David Kilby, editors)

Nominated, 2006-2007 Outstanding Teacher of the Year Award, University of New Mexico

Choice Book Award, 1995, for Of Marshes and Maize, Preceramic Agricultural Settlements in The Cienega Valley, Southeastern Arizona

Sigma Xi, 1995

Phi Beta Kappa, 1972

Phi Kappa Phi, 1972

Research, Teaching, and Service Interests

My archaeological research interests have long focused on the investigation of past subsistence choices, lithic technological organization, and mobility patterns of hunting-gathering societies in arid and semiarid environments of the North American Southwest and the western North America. For most of the 1980s and 1990s, I investigated Archaic period hunter-gatherers in this region, and, particularly, the cultural and ecological impacts associated with the addition of maize agriculture to wild resource foraging economies in the Southwest. This was the subject of my doctoral dissertation, and I have remained involved in research into the development of farming-foraging societies in the Southwest, including excavations into some of the earliest known Southwestern farmer-forager occupations at McEuen Cave in east-central Arizona in 2001. However, since 1998, my principal research focus has returned to a long-standing interest—the technological organization, land use, and ecology of the earliest occupants of North America. These interests have guided six field seasons of excavation at three Folsom sites on the Llano de Albuquerque, three seasons of investigations at the Mockingbird Gap Clovis site southeast of Socorro, nine seasons of investigation at the Beach Clovis Cache in North Dakota, and two seasons investigating a mammoth site in north-central New Mexico. In addition, I have spent a few weeks at a Cody complex site west of Bernalillo, and three weeks at the Martin Folsom site in the Estancia Basin. I have conducted and supervised student analyses of the artifacts and other data recovered from these efforts. Other research interests include the reconstruction of Quaternary environments through the study of geomorphology, sedimentary deposits, soils, and environmental indicators such as plant and animal remains and residues preserved in those deposits.

I have been involved in teaching since I started working at UNM in 1994. From 1994-2014, most of my duties were in the Maxwell Museum, so my primary obligations were in the realm of anthropological collections. I was, and am, particularly concerned with the preservation, organization, and use of these collections for research, teaching, and public education. Until 2014 I taught part-time in the Anthropology Department, offering one course a semester at most. Because of my interdisciplinary interests, I co-taught some classes with colleagues in Anthropology and Earth and Planetary Sciences. My principal teaching focused on applied courses that concerned analytical methodology and theory, and since 1995 I have regularly lectured on lithic artifact analysis to graduate students. Since 1996, I have co-taught with Earth and Planetary Sciences colleagues Gary Smith and Les McFadden, a class on geoarchaeology open to both graduate and undergraduate students. It too is offered regularly. From 1998-2005, I co-taught a seminar on the prehistory and biology of the earliest occupants of the New World with Joseph Powell, formerly of the evolutionary anthropology subfield, open to graduates and undergraduates with interests in biological anthropology and archaeology. In 2001 and 2003, I co-taught, with Robert Leonard, a class in zooarchaeology open to graduate and undergraduate students; in 2007 and 2009 I taught the class by myself. In 2003 I offered a course on Quaternary paleoenvironments and archaeology, a lecture class open to graduates and undergraduates. I have taught the Summer Southwestern Archaeological Field School six times, all at Paleoindian sites near Albuquerque, and have on a regular basis mentored both undergraduate and graduate students in independent reading and research project classes. Finally, I have chaired or co-chaired several doctoral dissertation committees, masters projects, and bachelors honors projects.

My service interests involve the preservation of archaeological sites and collections, environmental conservation, and the communication of archaeological knowledge to the public through lectures, demonstrations, exhibitions, and popular writing. Much of this was realized through my work in the Maxwell Museum. I was involved in the effort to draft and support passage of the City of Albuquerque's archaeological resources protection ordinance in 2007-2008. On campus, I served as a member of the University Press Committee from 2007-2014 and served as a board member of the UNM chapter of Phi Beta Kappa from 2006-2010. I am currently a member of the Society for American Archaeology's Committee on Museums and Collections. I also review manuscripts for regional and national/international journals, book manuscripts for publishers, and proposals for funding agencies.

Administrative Work in Department, College, and University Committees

Graduate Advisor, Archaeology subfield (1996-1997; 2000-2002; 2004-2005, 2015 to date)

Advised graduate students about coursework requirements and options; notified students and faculty of funding opportunities, competitive awards or prizes, and submission deadlines; oversaw administration of comprehensive exams; reported to subfield faculty on budgetary matters and graduate student business; answered queries from prospective graduate student applicants

Graduate Committee, Anthropology Department (1996-1997; 2000-2002; 2004-2005, 2015 to date)

Participated with graduate advisors from the other subfields to discuss matters of graduate student curriculum; helped in the design and implementation of a program of annual graduate student progress evaluation; ranked applicants for UNM scholarships, fellowships, and prize awards; helped determine teaching assistantship needs for subfields.

Office of Contract Archaeology Study Committee, Anthropology Department (1997-1998)

Member of a committee to evaluate ways in which the Office of Contract Archaeology might be more closely integrated into the archaeology subfield educational program and more effectively assist in the professional development of students

Office of Contract Archaeology Advisory Board (1999-2003)

Member of committee appointed by the Dean of Arts and Sciences to advise Garth Bawden on ways to integrate OCA into the Maxwell Museum structure. This includes review of the mission, policies, procedures, and organizational structure of OCA.

Board of Archaeology (1994-present)

Member of standing committee composed of archaeologists in the Anthropology Department and the Maxwell Museum that oversees activities involving archaeology on properties owned by UNM

75th Anniversary Committee (2003-2005)

Member of committee to plan events in celebration of the 75th Anniversary of the UNM Department of Anthropology and to initiate fund-raising for graduate student support

Secretary, Phi Beta Kappa, Alpha Chapter, University of New Mexico (2006-2010)

University of New Mexico Press Committee (2007-2014)

Member of committee appointed by Director of UNM Press that reviews proposals for publication decisions on book manuscripts. Chairperson 2010-2012

Search committee member, College of Arts and Sciences Development Officer (2008)

Search committee member, Director, University of New Mexico Press (2010)

Search committee member, Curator of Exhibits, Maxwell Museum of Anthropology (2011-2012)

Search committee member, Assistant Professor of Anthropology, Department of Anthropology (2011-2012)

Search committee member, Curator of Ethnology, Maxwell Museum of Anthropology (2013-2014)

Search committee chair, Archivist, Maxwell Museum of Anthropology (2014)

Community Service

2012-2013 Appointed board member, Maxwell Museum Association

2005-2007 Ex-officio board member, Maxwell Museum Association

2002-2003 Member, Cultural Properties Review Committee, State of New Mexico

1988-1992 Advisory Board member, Bureau of Land Management, San Pedro National Riparian Conservation Area, southeastern Arizona

1983-1994 Volunteer with Native Seeds-SEARCH, Tucson

1971-1972 Vice President for Activities, Arizona Archaeological and Historical Society, Tucson
