

UNM Department of Anthropology Honors Program Grants

Grants may be available for students to defray expenses incurred in the pursuit of undergraduate honors research projects. These expenses might include travel expenses to collect data, copying, photography, specialized software, supplies and equipment, etc. Students must be registered in the honors program and a faculty member must approve these requests. Applications are due by the Friday after Spring Break, concurrent with enrollment in the ANTH 498 Honors Seminar. Awards are variable depending on available funding.

Name _____

Banner ID _____

Address _____

Phone Number _____ Email _____

Research Project Title _____

Year in Anthropology Program _____

Additional Documentation Required:

1. Letter of Intent outlining research project
2. Letter of recommendation from current Anthropology faculty member
3. Unofficial Transcript
4. Preliminary budget (include estimated cost per item)

Donor Information for Honors Awards:

Maxine Graves Undergraduate Award

This scholarship was established by Dr. Michael W. Graves, UNM Professor of Anthropology and former chair of the Department (2007-2014) and his sister, Kathryn Tedrick, to honor the memory of their mother, Maxine Graves and her support of his pursuit of an education. The scholarship annually supports undergraduate students majoring in Anthropology who are in the Honors Program.

Ann Ramenofsky Anthropology Honors Student Award Fund

This fund was established by Professor Ann Ramenofsky in 2010 to recognize and support research activities of students in the undergraduate Honors Program within the UNM Anthropology Department.
