

UNM Department of Anthropology

Undergraduate Fellowships for Indigenous Students

This $500 award is given to a talented indigenous student who has declared their major in Anthropology. The award can be used to cover the costs of tuition or other student fees, field schools, field research (including travel), or presentations at professional meetings. Applicants must have at least sophomore status (30 credit hours) and must be a member of a Native American tribe.

Name _____ Banner ID _____

Address _____

Phone Number _____ Email _____

Tribal or other Indigenous Affiliation _____

Have you applied for this award before, and if so, when? _____

Major Concentration _____ Year at UNM _____

Your areas of Interest in Anthropology _____

In addition to this application, you must provide the following to be considered for this award:

1) Letter of Interest that describes how your status as an Indigenous person has shaped your interest in Anthropology. State your area of concentration and provide a description of the research or the professional meeting or field school you would like to attend, including the location and dates, and, if applicable, the proposed title and format (podium or poster) of your presentation.

2) Two Letters of Support from faculty members who are familiar with your research (may be submitted with the application or sent separately by faculty members)

3) Unofficial Transcripts (which can be printed through LoboWeb)

Submit your application materials electronically to the Department at anthro@unm.edu by the Friday following Spring Break.
