

Jackson Grady

---

208 Madison st NE ♦ Albuquerque, NM 87108 ♦ (314) 698-9905 ♦ Gradyj@unm.edu

EDUCATION:

2018- University of New Mexico Graduate student
Getting Ph.D. in Evolutionary Anthropology

2017 Duke University Bachelor of Science, May 2017
Majors: Biology and Evolutionary Anthropology

Junior Year Study Abroad, Spring 2016
Organization for Tropical Studies, South Africa
Coursework:

- South African Ecosystems & Diversity
- Field Research in Savanna Ecology
- Conservation and Management of Protected Areas in South Africa

Michigan State University, Kenya, Summer 2015
Behavioral Ecology of African Mammals

Honors:

Graduation with distinction in Evolutionary Anthropology
Dean's List, Spring 2016
University Research Support Independent Study Grant, 09/13/2016
UNM Graduate Student Research Grant 03/16/2019

RESEARCH EXPERIENCE:

Invited Conference Talks

2018 (OCT) NMAS 2018 Research Symposium

Publication:

2017 Zipple, M. N., Grady, J. H., Gordon, J. B., Chow, L. D., Archie, E. A., Altmann, J., & Alberts, S. C. (2017, January). Conditional fetal and infant killing by male baboons. In Proc. R. Soc. B (Vol. 284, No. 1847, p. 20162561). The Royal Society.

Senior Honors Thesis:

2018 To the Sticking Point: The Effectiveness of Tip Cross-Sectional Area versus Perimeter in Identifying Potential Lithic Armatures, Dr. Steven Churchill's lab,

Independent Study:

2016 Target Sighted: What male baboons select for when targeting mothers and offspring for feticide or infanticide, Dr. Susan Alberts' lab.

Field Research

2017-2018 Michigan State University, Dr. Kay Holekamp's Lab, spotted hyena cognitive and behavioral field studies, Kenya.

2015-2016 The effect of food restriction on lemur hibernation, Dr. Peter Klopfer's lab, The Duke Lemur Center

2015 The effect of sleep deprivation on lemur cognition, Dr. Charles Nunn's lab, The Duke Lemur Center, 9/2015-12/2015

RELATED EXPERIENCE:

- ◆ Bushcamp Company in Zambia, assisted guests, safari guides and wildlife photographer, Summer 2016
- ◆ Endangered Wolf Center, St. Louis, MO. Founded by Carol and Marlin Perkins to breed and reintroduce endangered canids into the wild including Mexican Gray Wolves, Red Wolves, Maned Wolves, Swift Foxes and African Painted Dogs, docent, 2013-2015

RELATED INTERESTS/SKILLS:

- ◆ Wildlife photography with photos accepted to Duke Visual Art Show 2016, 2017
- ◆ Wilderness first responder and CPR certified, 2016