FUNDING AT A GLANCE

This guide summarizes the funding opportunities that are most commonly of interest to archaeology students. It is not exhaustive – new opportunities arise frequently! We'll announce these via email. Please also note that, while this is the most recent information about these competitions, sometimes things change; make sure you double-check the listed website/consult the graduate advisor for the most recent information. Finally, keep in mind that for external competitions where students are nominated by the department, the departmental deadline is well before the final deadline to accommodate internal review.

ASSISTANTSHIPS

Most Anthropology graduate students at some point receive funding in the form of a Departmental assistantship – Graduate Assistantships (GAs, in which a student supports a faculty member in the classroom), Teaching Assistantships (TAs, in which a student teaches their own lab section or course), or Research Assistantships (RAs, in which a graduate student supports research). The specific terms of these awards are set by Graduate School policy; see <https://grad.unm.edu/funding/assistantships.html> for the latest information.

RA positions are typically negotiated directly with the faculty member offering them. For GAs and TAs, students who have been awarded a funding package that includes a GA or TA do not need to apply again for the years covered by their package; other students should apply following the process below. In addition, as each subfield has its own policy for how Departmental assistantships are awarded, checking with your subfield Graduate Advisor for more information is always a good idea.

Contracts for departmental assistantships are issued electronically to your UNM email address and require your approval within a specified time, so make sure to keep an eye out for them (including checking your spam folder). Your contract will include information regarding your contract period, stipend, tuition, and the process for approval through Graduate Studies. If you have not been employed by UNM for at least 2 semesters, you must complete all hiring paperwork 3 days prior to the start of work, one week prior to the start of classes.

Assistantships are also offered by other units across campus, and many Anthropology students have found extra-departmental assistantships to be a good source of funding. Keep an eye on the graduate student listserv for more information about such opportunities; your subfield Graduate Advisor and the Departmental Graduate Academic Advisor may also be able to help you find these. The details of such appointments (including contracts) are handled by the department offering the assistantship.

Please note that UNM regulations specify that students who are US Residents may work a maximum of .75 FTE (Full Time Equivalency), which equates to 30 hours per week. International students may work a maximum of .50 FTE, which equates to 20 hours per week. If you hold a student employment or other position at UNM, your total FTE may not exceed these limits. Therefore, you must resolve any student employment or other conflicts prior to accepting your assistantship contract so that you do not exceed the maximum FTE.

PART-TIME INSTRUCTOR (PTI)

Part-time instructor positions are available based on funding provided by the College of Arts and Sciences, which varies each year. These are teaching appointments, and the student teaches and grades the course. These assignments are dependent on courses assigned making minimum enrollment thresholds. There are no guarantees for funding unless the class makes minimum enrollment.

Eligibility for these positions varies by subfield; see the subfield-specific notes that follow and consult with your subfield Graduate Advisor for more information.

Application process: Fill out a PTI application (available on the department website under Graduate Tab/Forms and Resources) and send it your subfield Graduate Advisor, copying the Senior Academic Advisor.

Application Deadline: March 1st for fall and October 1st for spring (note that some departmental teaching assignments are awarded through the GA-TA application process – check with your subfield Graduate Advisor for details)

GRADUATE ASSISTANT (GA) and TEACHING ASSISTANT (TA)

GAs and TAs are department assistantships and range from .25 FTE/10 hours per week to .50FTE/20 hours per week. The award includes stipend, tuition (12 hours per semester for a .50 FTE) and health insurance. See <https://grad.unm.edu/funding/assistantships.html> for more details. Students are assigned as needed to classes to assist instructors (GA) or to teach laboratory sections (TA). A common assignment is to assist in one large class, two smaller classes, or teach 2-3 labs depending on size. Conflicts with student class schedules may arise. While we try to accommodate these issues, it is not always possible to fit the GA workload to the student's schedule. While you are on a TA/GA contract, you are classified as a NM resident for tuition purposes.

Eligibility: See the subfield policy statement below.

Application Process: Fill out a TA application (available on the department website under Graduate Tab/Forms and Resources) and email it to your subfield Graduate Advisor, copying the Senior Academic Advisor.

Application Deadline: Friday of the first week of classes in January

Archaeology Assistantship Policy

The Archaeology Faculty believes that teaching experience is an important part of graduate training. Our goal is to provide students who are making satisfactory progress within the degree program with the opportunity to teach during their graduate careers. At this time, GA/TA positions and funding are quite limited; we will try our best to provide at least one year of GA/TA funding to each student. Students will be selected for GA/TA positions on the basis of three primary criteria: years within the program (seniority), satisfactory progress toward completing their degrees, and amount of prior funded experience as a GA/TA for regular or online classes during the Fall and Spring Semesters (NOT summer classes or field schools). In the case of students in a cohort who are making identical progress toward the degree, the ultimate decision as to when individuals gain teaching experience is based on a vote of the Archaeology Faculty. In arriving at a decision, additional criteria may be taken into consideration, such as receipt of outside funding (such as an NSF fellowship), participation in professional activities (delivery of a paper at the SAA Meetings or publication of a paper in a professional journal), and specific aspects of progress in the program (completion of skills requirements, submission of the dissertation proposal for funding, and specific background necessary for certain assignments). For PTI assignments, the same criteria apply, with the added requirement that applicants must have advanced to candidacy.

Ethnology Assistantship Policy

If a student has been awarded a funding package that includes work as a GA, they do not need to apply to be a GA for the years covered by their package. All other students must apply anew every year for GA/TA positions. In determining students' ranking each year, faculty members in Ethnology take the following factors into consideration: seniority (length of time on a TA/GA list), number of courses completed, other requirements completed, GPA, and financial need. We try to give each student four semesters of GA/TA experience over the course of their graduate training. After these four, a student may continue to apply for GA/TA positions, but will only be selected once others who have not yet completed their four semesters have been placed. Junior students will be placed as assistants in classes led by other instructors as GAs. Positions in which graduate students are teaching their own classes are reserved for more senior students. Our goal is to give all of our students some GA and TA experience before they finish the PhD.

Evolutionary Anthropology Assistantship Policy

Our goal is to support each new graduate student for at least three years, renewable pending satisfactory performance. In arriving at the GA/TA decisions, students who apply are ranked according to the following criteria:

1. Skill sets appropriate for the tasks of the class.
2. Satisfactory progress toward the degree.
3. Students who are no longer taking classes are ranked below those needing class credit hours.

Ordinarily, graduate students do not grade other graduate students (e.g. as Teaching Associates), although advanced students may serve as GA/TAs for upper division classes. In Biology of the Skeleton (ANTH 350), an advanced graduate student acts as TA for the lab portions of the class and some 1st year graduate students do take the class. Advanced students may also assist with upper level lab courses such as ANTH 556L or ANTH 553. In these cases, the graduate students are always graded by the faculty member teaching the class.

1. Generally, we do not expect first year students to be qualified to GA/TA any class except Anthropology 101 or 150. In those cases they do not teach actual sections of the class.
2. We do not have a limit on graduate student support but advise students that they are expected to generate their own outside funding by 3rd to 4th year.

DEPARTMENT OF ANTHROPOLOGY AWARDS AND FELLOWSHIPS

Eligible students may self-nominate for the following department awards, fellowships, and honors. Please see the eligibility and application instructions for each award and contact your subfield Graduate Advisor or the Senior Academic Advisor with any questions. Note that some competitions may not be held every year.

ANTHROPOLOGY DISSERTATION FELLOWSHIP

This fellowship, generously provided by an anonymous donor, is intended for those students who have completed their research and are in the write up phase. The student must complete the dissertation during the period of support.

The Anthropology Dissertation Fellowship will be made annually at the discretion of the Fund Administrator based on the available balance of the Fund and any specific instructions from the Donor. In past years, the award has consisted of a $25,000 stipend plus $2,000 for professional development.

Eligibility: Anthropology graduate students in any of the three subfields, Ethnology, Archaeology, and Evolutionary Anthropology are eligible for consideration. The student must show evidence that they will complete the dissertation in the year in which they hold the award.

Application process:

Submit a CV and the UNM Department of Anthropology Dissertation Fellowship Application to your subfield Graduate Advisor and the Senior Academic Advisor. The application must address:

1. how the project reflects an interdisciplinary approach;
2. how it is oriented toward policy implications; and
3. evidence that that research has been completed and that the applicant will finish writing the dissertation during the academic year in which they hold the award.

Within each subfield, one finalist will be chosen by faculty vote. Candidates chosen to be the subfield nominee will request a letter of support from dissertation committee chair to be included in application packet. From among the three finalists, the recipient of the fellowship will be selected by the Graduate Committee.

Application Deadline: TBA; usually late April

FRANK J. BROILO, HARRY W. AND MARGARET BASEHART MEMORIAL ENDOWMENT SCHOLARSHIP

The Frank J. Broilo, Harry W. and Margaret Basehart Memorial Endowment Scholarship is a cash award of up to $500 or more is awarded annually by the Department of Anthropology to honor the memory of Frank J. Broilo, the first director of UNM's Office of Contract Archaeology until his death in 1979; Professor Harry W. Basehart, professor emeritus of anthropology until his death in 1988 and editor of the Department's Journal of Anthropological Research from 1962 to 1974 and 1981 to 1982; and his wife Margaret Basehart, who died in 1992.

Application Deadline: Fall semester

Nature of the award:

1. The award provides a $500 stipend
2. Awards are made yearly and alternate between Archaeology and Ethnology
3. Awards are made in the Spring semester, with Ethnology being awarded in odd years and Archaeology in even years.

Eligibility:

1. Given to deserving graduate students who are pursuing a course of study in Archaeology or Ethnology.
2. The scholarship alternates annually between Archaeology and Ethnology graduate students.

Application Process:

1. Archaeology faculty will send an announcement asking students to submit a conference paper or poster for consideration.
2. Ethnology candidates are nominated by the subfield
3. Application should be submitted to the Graduate Advisor of the appropriate subfield.

FRIEDA BUTLER AWARD

The Frieda D. Butler Award is given annually by the department of anthropology to honor the memory of Mrs. Butler, who established an endowment in 1975, when her grandson, Dr. Richard A. Barrett, was a member of the department faculty. In 1981 Butler's daughter Margaret A. Barrett requested that a portion of the fund's income be used for "a small award to a promising graduate student in anthropology."

Application Deadline: Monday before fall break

Nature of the award:

1. Student receives an honorarium of approximately $500
2. Student delivers a public lecture

Eligibility:

1. Has an exceptional academic record
2. Is at least in the semester in which s/he completes the Master's Degree
3. Has not yet taken the Doctoral Specials Examination
4. If the MA is in hand, it must have been received no more than three years ago
5. Has done some primary research including fieldwork or museum's collections analysis that forms the basis of the lecture
6. Must be able to deliver public lecture at the designated time

Student Self-nomination Procedure to the Subfield:

1. Submit letter of intent providing a title and a brief description of the lecture that will be presented.
2. Provide a copy of a Curriculum Vitae
3. Submit self-nomination materials to The Senior Academic Advisor and your subfield Graduate Advisor.

Subfield Nomination Procedure:

1. Ascertain that potential candidate is eligible in the fall semester
2. Ascertain the candidate is able to give lecture at the appointed time
3. Be prepared to make a short presentation on the candidate's qualifications at the next faculty meeting
4. Be prepared to introduce the successful candidate to the audience before the talk
5. Prepare and submit a succinct, written nomination for review by the Graduate Committee
6. Forward the name of the selected candidate and a copy of the nomination materials to the Graduate Committee for a final decision no later than December

Responsibilities of Butler Awardee:

1. Prepare the following for the Graduate Program Advisor, no later than three weeks prior to the lecture:
  - a. Full name of Candidate as s/he wishes it to appear in print
  - b. Title of the talk
  - c. Brief description of the talk and any audio-video equipment needed
  - d. Short biography for publicity purposes
  - e. Give the lecture on the selected date, bearing in mind that the presentation is for a general audience

Responsibilities of Subfield from which an Awardee is selected:

1. Inform the successful candidate immediately of his/her responsibilities (above)
2. Assist the winner as necessary in preparing an appealing lecture for a general audience
3. Assign a subfield faculty member to introduce the winner to the audience

HIBBEN DOCTORAL RESEARCH AWARDS

Application Deadline: Friday of the second week of classes in January

Nature of the award:

1. The Department of Anthropology and the Maxwell Museum invite applications for two categories of Doctoral Research Award:
  - I. Anthropological research in the Southwest, with an emphasis on public anthropology. *
  - II. Research focused on Maxwell Museum collections.
2. There is no service component to this award.
3. This award may not be given in conjunction with other major awards (such as the .75 assistantships).

Eligibility:

1. Open to students in good academic standing who have passed their Doctoral Specials Examination and whose dissertation proposal has been approved by the student's committee or subfield faculty.
2. We may favor students in the research phase.
3. Students applying under Category II ("Research focused on Maxwell Museum collections") must obtain permission from the relevant curator prior to submitting an application.

Application Process:

1. Eligible students should submit to subfield Graduate Advisor and the Senior Academic Advisor, a CV and a letter of intent that summarizes the proposed research project, describes academic and career goals, and explains how the award will facilitate completion of the dissertation.
2. Each subfield will rank its applicants and forward their nominations to the Graduate Committee, whose decision is subject to approval by the Hibben Trust Board.

**Public Anthropology: Anthropological work that seeks to address larger social concerns beyond the boundaries of the discipline and the academy. It necessarily involves community engagement and communication with non-academic as well as academic audiences, and the promotion of public conversation about broad social issues. It may involve community-based, collaborative, and participatory approaches in any or all phases of research, from problem definition and design to the dissemination of findings. It seeks to fuse theory with practice, and to achieve social value for specific communities of study and/or the wider public.*

RUTH E. KENNEDY AWARD

The Ruth E. Kennedy Award is given annually by the Department of Anthropology to honor the memory of Ruth E. Kennedy, wife of Edwin L. Kennedy, a major donor to the Maxwell Museum. Initiated in 1981, the award recognizes Mrs. Kennedy's abiding interest in public education.

Application Deadline: Monday before fall break

Nature of the award:

1. Student receives an honorarium of approximately $500
2. Delivers a public lecture.

Eligibility:

1. PhD with an exceptional academic record
2. Must have passed PhD Special Exam
3. Dissertation prospectus must be approved
4. Dissertation research must be completed and at least in the analysis phase
5. If dissertation is completed, the defense must have been in the past year
6. Must be able to deliver public lecture at the designated time

Student Self-nomination Procedure to the Subfield:

1. Submit self-nomination materials to The Senior Academic Advisor and your subfield Graduate Advisor. Submit letter of intent providing a title and a brief description of the lecture that will be presented.
2. Provide a copy of Curriculum Vitae.

Subfield Nomination Procedure:

1. Ascertain that potential candidate is eligible in the fall
2. Ascertain the candidate is able to give lecture at the appointed time
3. Be prepared to introduce the successful candidate to the audience before the talk
4. Forward the name of the selected candidate and a copy of the nomination materials to the Graduate Committee for a final decision

Responsibilities of Kennedy Awardee:

1. Prepare for the Graduate Program Advisor, no later than 3 weeks prior to the lecture:
  - a. Name of Candidate as s/he wishes it to appear in print
  - b. Title of talk
  - c. Brief description of the talk and any audio-video equipment needed
  - d. Short biography for publicity purposes
  - e. A list of the people to be invited
2. Give the lecture on the selected date, bearing in mind that the presentation is for a general audience

Responsibilities of Subfield from which Awardee is selected:

1. Inform the successful candidate immediately of his/her responsibilities (above)
2. Assign the winner as necessary in preparing an appealing lecture for a general audience
3. Assign a subfield faculty member to introduce the winner to the audience

LOUISE LAMPHERE POLICY FELLOWSHIP

Funded by Distinguished Professor emerita Dr. Louise Lamphere, the Louise Lamphere Policy Fellowship supports graduate students in the Ethnology doctoral program, providing stipend support for dissertation research involving policy issues and supporting their internship with College of Arts and Sciences.

Application Deadline: Third Friday in January. Please submit electronic applications to the ethnology member of the graduate committee.

Nature of the award:

1. This 0.5 FTE award provides a monthly stipend, tuition up to six credit hours per semester, and health insurance.
2. During the grant year, the recipient will work a maximum of 10 hours per week assisting the Ortiz Director.
3. During the spring term, the recipient will make a public presentation that addresses policy aspects or implications of their research. The presentation may be scheduled in the weekly Anthropology Colloquium series or separately with the Anthropology Department or Maxwell Museum
4. The selection committee consists of the Ortiz Center Director, the ethnology member of the graduate committee, and one other member of the ethnology faculty appointed by the ethnology convener.

Eligibility:

1. Eligible candidates must be in the Ethnology program.
2. The candidate should be conducting research that is both collaborative and relevant to a policy issue. Possible areas of focus can include but are not limited to cultural heritage, health care, immigration, education, language issues, economic development, human rights, and the environment.
3. Priority is given to applicants as follows:
  - a) First priority: students with commitment to policy/applied anthropology who have defended their proposals and are conducting fieldwork or writing their dissertation, resident in Albuquerque during the fellowship
  - b) Second priority: students with commitment to policy/applied anthropology who have defended their proposals and are conducting fieldwork or writing their dissertation, non-resident in Albuquerque during the fellowship

- c) Third priority, when 1 and 2 are not available, students who have completed coursework, are in the proposal writing stage, and can demonstrate a clear commitment to policy/applied anthropology.
- 4. Application for a one-year renewal is permitted.

Process:

1. The graduate committee will send a call for applications to the graduate student list-serve by November 30.
2. On or before the third Friday in January, applicants submit to the ethnology member of the graduate committee a proposal that includes:
  - a) A description of the research topic and its relevance to a policy issue
  - b) A plan for collaboration with a community, NGO, or government agency. The plan may involve a community, NGO or agency that is not in Albuquerque or the U.S. In this case, the applicant should specify how collaboration would take place at a distance.
  - c) A plan of work and timeline for research and/or dissertation write-up.
  - d) A current CV.

MOORE ARCHAEOLOGY RESEARCH GRANTS

The Moore Archaeology Research Grants consist of awards of up to $1,000 to be used by students for research, including but not limited to collections visits, dissertation site prospecting, sample analysis, and equipment purchase.

Application deadline: applications are solicited by the Archaeology subfield twice a year, once in the fall and once in the spring.

Nature of the award:

1. Fall research grants can be used to cover activities during that fall or subsequent spring and summer semesters. Spring research grants can be used to cover activities during that spring or subsequent summer and fall semesters.
2. If not funded the first time, a revised proposal for the same research may be resubmitted, but the same proposal can only be submitted in two consecutive funding cycles.
3. Archaeology subfield faculty will select recipients
4. At the time of the award, the student will choose whether to receive the grant as a scholarship or as a reimbursement. Note that receiving the grant as a scholarship may adversely impact your financial aid. If you choose to receive the grant as a reimbursement for expenses, you must submit original receipts and a departmental reimbursement form within one week of completing your purchase (e.g., of equipment) or completing any research-related travel.

Eligibility:

1. Archaeology graduate students in good standing
2. All else being equal, preference may be given to proposals for dissertation topic exploration
3. Students can receive 1 research grant every 2 years

Application Process:

1. Students self-nominate by email to the Archaeology subfield graduate advisor
2. Application should consist of a proposal describing:
  - a. the proposed project (ca. 500 words)
  - b. its relationship to the dissertation research (ca. 500 words)
  - c. a budget
  - d. applicant CV
3. The application should be in the form of a single pdf that combines all parts listed above.

MOORE ARCHAEOLOGY TRAVEL GRANTS

The Moore Archaeology Travel Grants consist of up to $500 to be used by archaeology students in the PhD or Public Archaeology Master's degree programs traveling to professional meetings.

Application deadline: applications are solicited by the Archaeology subfield twice a year, once in the fall and once in the spring.

Nature of the award:

1. Fall travel grants can be used to cover travel during that fall or subsequent spring and summer semesters. Spring travel grants can be used to cover travel during the spring or subsequent summer and fall semesters.
2. If turned down the first time, students can submit a revised proposal for the same conference, but the same proposal can only be submitted in two consecutive cycles.
3. Archaeology subfield faculty will select the recipients.
4. At the time of the award, the student will choose whether to receive the grant as a scholarship or as a reimbursement. Note that receiving the grant as a scholarship may adversely impact your financial aid. If you choose to receive the grant as a reimbursement for expenses, you must submit original receipts and a departmental reimbursement form within one week of completing your conference travel.

Eligibility:

1. Archaeology graduate students in good standing

2. Awards are given only to students participating in a conference as a presenter or session organizer to cover travel, food, lodging, or conference fees
3. Students can receive funds only every other year (more often if there are no other qualified applicants).
4. Seniority (closeness to completion of degree) will be taken into consideration but is not the sole criterion for selection.

Application Process:

1. Students self-nominate by email to the Archaeology subfield graduate advisor
2. Submit travel grant application and CV as a single pdf.

JOSEPH POWELL ANTHROPOLOGY ENDOWMENT FUND

The purpose of this endowment is to support Evolutionary Anthropology graduate student research on the topic of human and non-human primate biological variation and behavioral ecology, both past and present.

Application Deadline: March 1

Nature of the Award:

1. Awards are used to support graduate student research in Evolutionary Anthropology
2. Awards are $500, and one award per year is made

Eligibility:

1. Must be a current graduate student in the Evolutionary Anthropology program in good standing
2. Focus of research must be on the topic of human and non-human biological variation and behavioral ecology

Subfield Nomination Procedure (Evolutionary Anthropology only):

1. Requests for submissions are issued by the Graduate Advisor for Evolutionary Anthropology
2. A three-member selection committee, comprised of the convener of Evolutionary Anthropology, the graduate advisor for Evolutionary Anthropology, and a subfield member who will rotate through the subfield each year.
3. Selections will be made on the quality and significance of the proposed research and other sources of funds that are being sought to support it.

STUDENT TRAVEL FUNDS

Application Deadline: There are two application periods each year. Monday before Spring and Fall break

Nature of the award:

1. Travel grants can be up to $300 each and cover any time of that academic year for travel through June 30th.
2. Applications can be retroactive or in advance of one semester (for example in cases where an abstract was accepted and conference attended after previous deadline).
3. Graduate Committee will select recipients.
4. Department travel funds are disbursed on a reimbursement basis for travel through June 30th.
5. You must submit original receipts within 1 week of completing your trip. Expect the reimbursement process to take a week or so.

Eligibility:

1. Anthropology graduate students in good standing.
2. Awards are given only to students participating in a conference to cover travel, food, lodging, conference fees, etc.
3. Students can receive funds only every other year (more often if there are no other qualified candidates).
4. Limit of 3 travel grants during time at UNM. Seniority (closeness to completion of dissertation) will be taken into consideration but is not the sole criterion for selection

Application Process:

1. Self-nominate to department by email to the Senior Academic Advisor and your subfield Graduate Advisor. (Application available on the department website under the Graduate Tab/Forms and Resources)

UNM GRADUATE STUDIES FUNDING OPPORTUNITIES

The following awards are typically offered through the Office of Graduate Studies. Because they are limited to a single nomination per department, they require a department-level competition first. While the descriptions below explain the process generally, please be aware that the awards offered by Graduate Studies, the criteria by which applicants are evaluated, and the process are subject to change. See <https://grad.unm.edu/funding/index.html> for the latest information.

- Graduate Dean's Dissertation Fellowship:
<http://grad.unm.edu/funding/fellowships/deans-fellowship.html>. Students who are in the process of writing the dissertation and anticipate completion by the end of the following academic year are eligible. The Department can nominate one student for this award. To apply, submit a copy of academic transcript, Curriculum Vita, outline of dissertation organization and progress, a statement describing academic goals and how getting the fellowship would facilitate completion of the dissertation, and a letter of support from the candidate's major advisor to your subfield Graduate Advisor (copying the Senior Academic Advisor) no later than the first Friday of Spring Semester.

- Graduate Research supplement: <https://grad.unm.edu/funding/research-travel-grants/research-supplement.html>. Awards up to $2,000 to facilitate completion of the PhD dissertation; may support direct expenses incurred for archival or field research. This award may not be used for stipends, books, travel to conferences, or equipment. Students in good academic standing, ABD at the time of application, registered as full time in the spring semester of application, and returning full time the following fall, with an expected graduate date of that fall or the following spring semester, are eligible. The Department can nominate one student for this award. To apply, submit a 500- to 750-word personal statement and a letter of support from the major advisor to your subfield Graduate Advisor (copying the Senior Academic Advisor) no later than March 1.
- Popejoy Prize: <https://grad.unm.edu/funding/awards-honors.html>. The Tom L. Popejoy Dissertation Prize recognizes the highest level of academic excellence among UNM doctoral students. Competition for the prize is structured on a three-year rotation, so that in one year, the departments of Art and Art History (including MFA) and Humanities are asked to submit their best dissertations; in the next, Physical Sciences, Life Sciences, Engineering and Mathematics & Statistics; and last, Social Sciences and Education (including EdD). In the years when Department of Anthropology PhD graduates are eligible to apply, we will solicit applications through the department listserv. Subfields will select one applicant and forward the name to the Graduate Committee; the Graduate Committee will select the department nominee.

Additional awards, which may not require a Department nomination (i.e., you can apply on your own), are often available from Graduate Studies, including the Rogers Research Award (<https://grad.unm.edu/funding/research-travel-grants/rogers-research.html>) and the Doctoral Conference Presentation Award (<https://grad.unm.edu/funding/research-travel-grants/doc-conference-award.html>). Check the Graduate Studies website (<https://grad.unm.edu/funding/index.html>) frequently for the latest information!

GRADUATE AND PROFESSIONAL STUDENT ASSOCIATION FUNDING OPPORTUNITIES

The UNM Graduate and Professional Student Association typically offers the following grants (but check <https://gpsa.unm.edu/funding/grants-funding/grant-scholarship.html> for the latest information). There is no departmental competition for these awards; apply directly to GPSA.

- Student Research Grant (SRG): May fund travel and lodging to conduct research in the field (includes artistic projects like photography or dance), the cost of research materials, and/or travel/lodging and conference fees for conferences at which the applicant is making a presentation. Offered every fall, spring and summer semester. Up to $500.

- Professional Development Grant (PDG): May fund travel/lodging and fees for job interviews, auditions, clinicals, mock trials, unpaid internships, conferences at which the applicant is not making a presentation, and other professional development travel or related expenses. May not fund expenses eligible for the SRG. Offered every fall, spring and summer semester. Up to $500.
- New Mexico Research Grant (NMRG): May fund travel, lodging, supplies, and other costs related to field research. Projects with a New Mexico state agency, nonprofit or community organization require a letter of recommendation from a representative of the organization, and are eligible for up to $5000 (High Priority). Other research projects are eligible for up to $3000 (General Priority). Offered during fall semester only.
- Graduate Scholarship Fund (GSF): In addition to grants, each summer, fall, and spring semester GPSA offers the Graduate Scholarship Fund (GSF) - a $1,000, need-based scholarship to help graduate students offset the cost of tuition, books, and fees.

NON-DEPARTMENTAL FUNDING OPPORTUNITIES (WITH DEPARTMENT COMPETITIONS)

The following units typically have competitions for which the Department may nominate students. The deadlines may vary from year to year, so be sure to check the relevant website. As in other departmental competitions, students may self-nominate by sending the requested application materials to the subfield Graduate Advisor and the Senior Academic Advisor.

- School for Advanced Research Resident Scholars:
<https://sarweb.org/scholars/resident/>. Resident scholar fellowships are awarded annually by the School for Advanced Research (SAR) to up to six scholars who have completed their research and who need time to prepare manuscripts or dissertations on topics important to the understanding of humankind. Resident scholars may approach their research from the perspective of anthropology or from related fields such as history and sociology. Scholars from the humanities and social sciences are encouraged to apply. The SAR deadline is November 1 of each year; the deadline for the department competition is September 30.
- Latin American and Iberian Institute PhD Fellowships:
<https://lail.unm.edu/funding/phd-fellowships.html>. Open to doctoral candidates in partner departments (of which Anthropology is one). The fellowship provides a stipend and a waiver of tuition and fees. Students who are awarded LAII PhD Fellowships may receive other awards. The call for nominations is typically available in late November, and the deadline for the department competition will be announced at this time; it is usually in late January.

OTHER NON-DEPARTMENTAL FUNDING COMPETITIONS

The following opportunities are ones you can apply for on your own – there is no department competition. As always, check the relevant websites, as the nature of the award and the deadlines are subject to change – and keep your eye out for other competitions as well, as other grants may become available!

- Latin American and Iberian Institute Field Research Grants:
<https://lail.unm.edu/funding/student-field-research-grants.html>. These grants provide graduate students with the ability to acquire a comprehensive knowledge of Latin American languages, terrain and cultures; to become familiar with information sources relevant to their studies; to conduct pilot studies and preliminary investigations that will inform their thesis or dissertation proposals; and to develop contacts with scholars and institutions in their fields of study. Master's students and doctoral students at the early stages of study (pre-dissertation), as well as students pursuing professional degrees are eligible to apply. The deadline for application is typically in March, and LAII often hosts information sessions for prospective applicants in advance of the deadline.
- Center for Southwest Research Graduate Fellowships:
<https://elibrary.unm.edu/cswr/fellowships.php>. The UNM Libraries' Center for Southwest Research & Special Collections provides fellowships each year for UNM graduate students for digitization projects, to work with our collections, and in other areas. The call for applications typically becomes available in April and applications are usually due in May, but check the website for the latest information.
- Center for Regional Studies Graduate Fellowships:
<https://crsinfo.unm.edu/initiatives/Graduate%20Fellowships/index.html>. While the terms of these fellowships vary from year to year, they are designed to support graduate students working in New Mexico and the greater Southwest. Applications are typically due at the end of April, with the call for applicants available several weeks ahead of the deadline.

UNM FINANCIAL AID

UNM administers student loans including short-term emergency loans, as well as work-study and student employment programs. Filing a FAFSA yearly is often worthwhile, regardless of your intention to take advantage of these; some UNM competitions require that applicants have a FAFSA on file.

EXTRAMURAL FUNDING

The UNM Department of Anthropology encourages graduate students to seek extramural funding, which can supplement the costs of their graduate research and travel as well as increase their ability to be competitive in the job market.

There are several offices on campus involved in grant and proposal preparation and submission, so it is very important that you carefully plan in advance so you can meet the deadlines of the funding agency.

The following general information about grant submission at UNM may be of use to you; it is included here to provide you an overview of the process. For help in applying to any individual grant, consult your faculty advisor, your subfield Graduate Advisor, and/or the Senior Academic Advisor.

Funding Announcements and Agencies

There are a variety of funding agencies that provide support for competitive research projects. They provide clear guidelines on proposal submissions, the use of grant funding, policies and procedures, and reporting, as well as ongoing funding opportunities.

The University of New Mexico PIVOT Website is a database that provides lists of current and ongoing funding opportunities, as well as calls for papers, from a variety of sources and is searchable by discipline type as well as funding agency. You can sign up for a PIVOT account through their website at: https://pivot.cos.com/funding\_main

The National Science Foundation (NSF) provides dissertation improvement grants for students showing strong potential in their research proposals. As of 2017, 76% of their funding goes to academic institutions: <https://www.nsf.gov/>

The Wenner-Gren Foundation has three major goals: to support significant and innovative anthropological research into humanity's biological and cultural origins, development, and variation; to foster the international community of research scholars in anthropology; and to provide leadership at the forefronts of the discipline. Of interest to graduate students, they provide grants for doctoral students, including non-US students: <http://www.wennergren.org/>

The National Institutes of Health provides a variety of funding opportunities through NIH as well as announcements of non-NIH funded research opportunities. NIH's mission is to seek fundamental knowledge about the nature and behavior of living systems and the application of that knowledge to enhance health, lengthen life, and reduce illness and disability: <https://www.nih.gov/>

Institutional Review Board (IRB)

Institutional review is required for any research meeting the criteria for human subjects research for living populations. See <http://irb.unm.edu> to assess if your project requires review and for support with the IRB process.

Cayuse

Cayuse SP is UNM's tool for developing and managing proposal submissions to UNM Office of Sponsored Projects, as well as monitoring and tracking award activity throughout the project's lifecycle. If you are submitting a grant through OSP, you will need a Cayuse account. To request one, visit the following website: <http://osp.unm.edu/docs/request-for-cayuse-account.html>. The Cayuse User Support Manual provides step by step information regarding the preparation and submission of your proposal through the system, routing for approvals, awards, reporting, and other important information related to your proposal: <http://support.cayuse.com/docs/Cayuse%20SP/user-reference-manual>. The Cayuse support center can provide you with information regarding training, frequently asked questions, and support: <https://support.evisions.com/>

Office of Sponsored Projects (OSP)

The Office of Sponsored Projects reviews projects once all approvals at the Department and College levels have been finalized. More information about OSP and their review process can be found here: <https://osp.unm.edu/index.html>

Other Important Notes

As the recipient organization, UNM is responsible for the administration and monitoring of all awards. All UNM policies and procedures must be adhered to during the project period, including those regarding employment/hiring, use of University property, conflict of interest management, and allowable expenditures.

Since UNM is the recipient organization, all equipment (including computers and software) that is purchased under a grant award is considered property of the University and will revert to the University at the conclusion of the project period.

OTHER DEPARTMENT OF ANTHROPOLOGY AWARDS AND FUNDS

The following section describes awards available through the Anthropology Department for which students must be nominated (i.e., for which you cannot apply for yourself). If you have any questions about these awards, please contact the Senior Academic Advisor, your subfield Graduate Advisor, and/or the Department Administrator.

LINDA CORDELL GRADUATE SCHOLARSHIP

Dr. Linda Cordell was a remarkable scholar. An archaeologist of the American Southwest, she taught at the University of New Mexico from 1971 to 1987, during which time she directed the UNM Southwest Field Schools at Tijeras Canyon, Rowe Pueblo, and Teypama and produced the first modern synthesis of Southwestern archaeology (still in print). Dr. Cordell influenced a generation of UNM students, rising in the ranks to become a Full Professor, then Department Chair, and then Vice-President for Research. During her career, she received numerous honors including election to the National Academy of Sciences, Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, the A.V. Kidder Medal for Eminence in American Archaeology, and the Lifetime Achievement Award from the Society of American Archaeology. Dr. Cordell passed away in March 2013.

The Cordell Scholarship is awarded annually to an outstanding graduate student in Archaeology.

Nomination process: the recipient is selected by the Archaeology faculty.

HIBBEN RECRUITMENT FELLOWSHIPS

The Department of Anthropology and the Maxwell Museum of Anthropology provide recruitment fellowships to support graduate education in anthropology at the University of New Mexico, through the support of the Frank C. Hibben Trust. This program, named for and endowed by the late Dr. Frank C. Hibben, an archaeologist who was a Professor of Anthropology and former Director of the Maxwell Museum, provides awards for incoming students.

Nomination process: subfields nominate eligible admitted students to the Graduate Committee in February of each year. The Graduate Committee selects the final slate of nominees. All awards are subject to approval by the Hibben Trust Board.

Eligibility:

1. Native American graduate students studying Southwestern archaeology
2. Native American graduate students in other fields of anthropology
3. Non-Native American graduate students studying Southwestern archaeology
4. Native American and non-Native American graduates of UNM
5. Non-Native American graduate students in other fields of anthropology

Additional details:

1. Subject to the Trust's approval and satisfactory progress in the program, awardees may have their awards renewed for up to three years total.
2. Service requirement – 10 hours a week in the Maxwell Museum

KARL H. SCHWERIN GRADUATE FELLOWSHIP IN ETHNOLOGY

The Karl H. Schwerin Graduate Fellowship in Ethnology is awarded annually by the Department of Anthropology. Professor Schwerin, former chair of the department (1987-1993), endowed the fellowship, which was first awarded in 1998.

Nature of the award:

1. Variable award depending on interest drawn from an endowment account. Awards in previous years were approximately $500-$850
2. Recipient chosen in the spring (mid-April) for the following summer and/or fall semester
3. The fellowship is an annual award and should be paid on a yearly basis
4. May be awarded to the same student in successive years providing the student is making satisfactory academic progress toward a degree

Eligibility:

1. Deserving graduate students pursuing a course of study in ethnology or cultural or social anthropology
2. Fellowship awarded to students who have not yet begun doctoral field research.
3. Fellowship awarded only to an individual who has so far received minimal or no support
4. Primary consideration will be based on scholastic ability and research potential
5. Consideration will be given to students who can demonstrate financial need

Nomination Procedure (Ethnology only):

1. Ascertain that potential candidate is eligible.
2. A committee consisting of the Chair of the Department of Anthropology and two faculty representatives from the department's programs in ethnology, cultural anthropology or social anthropology shall select recipients of the annual graduate fellowship award in accordance with the normal criteria used to select any and all fellowship winners.
3. Student's ethnology faculty graduate advisor must notify the successful candidate, the program advisement coordinator, and the department accountant
4. Student's ethnology faculty graduate advisor must notify Dr. Karl Schwerin

SPUHLER AWARD

The Spuhler Award is named after James Norman Spuhler, a leading figure in the establishment of the field of anthropological genetics and a distinguished professor of anthropology at the University of New Mexico from 1967 to 1984. This award is typically used by the Evolutionary Anthropology faculty to recruit an outstanding graduate student. In years when it is not given to a newly recruited student, the award may be given to an outstanding current graduate student in Evolutionary Anthropology.

Eligibility:

1. Nominees must be in the Evolutionary Anthropology program
2. Priority is given to nominees as follows:
  - First priority: applicants to the PhD program
  - Second priority: current students in the PhD program

Nomination process: the recipient is selected by the Evolutionary Anthropology faculty.

DAVE STUART SCHOLARSHIP IN PUBLIC ANTHROPOLOGY

The Dave Stuart Scholarship for students in Public Anthropology was established by Dr. Dave Stuart, former faculty member and Associate Provost at the University of New Mexico.

Nomination process: subfields nominate eligible students to the Graduate Committee no later than April 15.

Nature of the award:

1. An annual award providing up to $500 per semester.
2. Awarded for a maximum of two consecutive years.
3. Purpose of the award is to encourage the study and practice of Anthropology in a way that is accessible to the public.

Eligibility:

1. One award per year for either a UNM undergrad entering her/his senior year, or a UNM graduate student.
2. Open to all concentrations.
3. Preference given to UNM graduate students and undergrad students who are in the department Honors program or in the University Honors program.
4. Open to full or half time students in the Anthropology program.
5. Recipients must demonstrate financial need.

Selection Process:

1. Nominated by subfield
2. Jointly selected by the Chair of Anthropology and Graduate Committee
