

UNM Department of Anthropology
Application for the UNM Archaeology Field School, 2023
Santa Fe National Forest & Cibola National Forest
June 5 – July 14, 2023

This field program, co-sponsored by the University of New Mexico and the US Forest Service, will take place over a period of 6 weeks in the summer of 2023, with three weeks of work on the Jemez Ranger District and three weeks on the Sandia Ranger District. This application and supporting materials are due on April 1, 2023.

Undergraduate and recently graduated students of Native American, Native Hawaiian, and Alaska Native descent are invited to apply for an Hibben Undergraduate Fellowship to cover the cost of attending the Field School. See additional required materials at the end of this application form.

Name

Address

Phone Number(s)

Email

UNM Banner ID (for current UNM students only)

University/College

Standing/Year

Major, Concentration and Minor

Major GPA

Overall GPA

List Anthropology (and related) courses you have completed:

Describe your background and experience in research, training, and outreach in anthropology and related field. Please include previous archaeological experience (including classes, lab work, and field work), and any background/experience you may have in hiking, working outdoors, or manual labor:

Why are you interested in taking this particular field school? How it will further your educational and career goals?

Please read the following and initial:

_____ I understand that this is a six (6)-credit summer course, which requires registering for Anth 375 (undergraduate) or Anth 575 (graduate) through the University of New Mexico.

_____ I understand that in addition to tuition, there is a course fee of $800. Students are also asked to provide some basic field equipment of their own (less than $100; a list will be provided upon acceptance).

_____ I understand that before fieldwork begins, I will be required to show proof of health and accident insurance for the duration of the session.

_____ I understand that I am responsible for my own housing and food during this time, as well as transportation to and from the UNM campus each day (transportation to and from the field area will be provided).

_____ I understand that the field schedule will run from 6:30 am to 4:30 pm, Monday through Friday.

_____ I understand that I will be working outside in sometimes adverse conditions, including high temperatures (average of 90°F in June and July), full sun, and rain. I confirm that I have the physical ability to hike 3-5 miles per day, use a shovel, and lift 20 pounds at a time.

Signature _____ Date _____

Application Materials:

In addition to the application, you must provide the following to be considered for the field school:

1. Letter of support from a faculty member who is familiar with your work at UNM or the college you attend (may be submitted with application or sent separately by the faculty member.)
2. Unofficial transcripts (for UNM students this can be downloaded and printed via Loboweb)

Submit your application materials (compiled into a single PDF with your last name as part of the file name) electronically to Hannah Mattson hmattson@unm.edu and Rebecca Baisden rbaisden@unm.edu by April 1, 2023. Please reference "UNM Archaeology Field School" in the subject line of your email.

Hibben Undergraduate Fellowship:

Eligible students may be considered for the new Hibben Undergraduate Fellowship for Native American, Hawaiian, Alaskan, and Pacific Islanders providing basic field training in archaeology. The fellowship covers UNM tuition and course fees (6 credit hours, Anth 375), up to $1000 in travel costs, and a stipend of $3000. Recipients will participate in an additional two weeks preparing a final paper and/or poster on the student's own time.

For Hibben Fellowship consideration, please indicate the following:

Native American Native Hawaiian Native Alaskan Pacific Islander